Put it in the Star want column for quick results.

If the Salvation Army wants to give the worthy poor automobile outings, dinners, etc., the editor of the Tulsa Star should come in for a good share.

The officers of this city could do far more towards keeping a clean town if given the hearty support of the people. No officer can do his full duty unassisted by the citizens.

He is a small man who swells up and explodes when presented a bill which he has incurred of his own volition. Kindly remember, dear friend, we have bills to meet and we depend on collecting from you before we can meet them.

We are pleased to note that the Star's fight on the East Archer resorts is meeting with success. Two of the obnoxious houses have been closed and the general conditions along this street improved but there is yet room for complaint.

The Star is now carrying a "Want Ad" column, which will fill a growing demand among our people, and the white people as well, inasmuch as "Colored Help" and "White Employers" may come in touch with each other through the Star "Want Columns." Read the Star "Want Column."

One of the finest programs ever put out in Tulsa was that of the Mt. Zion Baptist Church Chautauqua, which is now going on in this city. This program was printed in this office. All of the work done on this program was done in this office, notwithstanding the report that it was printed in a "white" shop.

The Mt. Zion Baptist Church passed resolutions last Sunday commending and endorsing The Tulsa Star on its stand for civic and moral improvements. This was done after Dr. White, the pastor, had preached a sermon on the public evil and praised the Star for its attitude against it. We feel that we are gradually coming unto our own.

The Salvation Army of this city gathered up all of the poor children (white) of Tulsa and gave them an automobile outing Wednesday and served them a palatable dinner under shade trees, etc. The Star desires to raise a point of order on the whole proceedings. Those engaged in the work of Jesus Christ should not draw the color line. There are a number of poor colored children in Tulsa who would enjoy an outing like the white kiddies got Wednesday. Who will lead? Behold, all is silent!

The recent suicide of Paul Pierce, a prominent merchant of Enfield, who shot and instantly killed himself after shooting his wife, is still shrouded in mystery, save what Dame Rumor has to say about it.

Probably none but his wife will ever know the real cause for his rash act. Back of all of it is evidence of family troubles. Therein lies a golden lesson for the rest of us. There is no heaven sweeter and more to be desired than a really happy home. On the other hand all the terrors of the proverbial hell, even in Dante's blackest description, is much more to be preferred over a home where discord, discontent, deception and jealousy predominates. How different it might be in this beautiful but sorrowed home had man and wife been in harmonious accord with each other.

JUST A WORD TO THE READING PUBLIC:

Have you noticed what a nice line of ads we carry? These advertisements represent a class of merchants and other business and professional men who are doing legitimate business and who are the real town builders, because they are not engaged in business for a purely selfish motive. They are men who have made good or are doing so, not from the spoils of an illegitimate business but from honest endeavor and lawful enterprise. We feel that we can vouch for all of our advertisers as business men who are anxious to give the public full measure in every respect for their money. It is usually those who advertise that give the best bargains. The fellow who never advertises is usually the fellow who is afraid for the public generally to find him out. Therefore, we urge you to read carefully our advertising columns and spend your money with those who are advertising in the Star. You will not make any mistake by so doing. The man who refuses to advertise for your trade is not entitled to it.

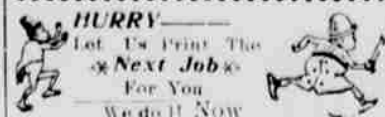

Few people realize what a struggle marks the career of a newspaper man.

Each issue of any kind of a newspaper is at least two-thirds "free doings," so far as the public is concerned, but very expensive to the publisher. And yet some of our friends get all huff up if we fail to print their name once in awhile.

We would have our dear friends and readers remember that in this day of high cost of living it is impracticable that we can successfully run this paper and give them what they want and what they are justly entitled to—a first-class representative paper—without money and lots of it. The newspaper business is one of the most expensive of all enterprises, and without the proper support, can not prosper.

Now, dear friends, kindly bear this in mind and when you think the paper is not as good as it should be, call around and see the editor and bring along something substantial, that you may better complain.

CUSHING OPENS COLORED ADD.

The recent oil development at Cushing and the natural boom that followed in the wake of these events has caused that town to assume a spirit of boost and progress second only to Tulsa and in the last few months the growth of the town both in finance and population has been something remarkable. Both white and colored people are moving into Cushing and many new enterprises are springing up there.

The continual increase in the population has made it necessary to open up new additions to the town and at this time a colored addition is being put on under the management of O. W. Gurley of this city. Mr. Gurley and policeman Williams left the city this morning to look over the new site for the colored addition to Cushing.

LIBETINES MUST GO

There will be trouble in the camp for the libertines in the East. End who are living in open adultery under the misnomer of "man and wife" when the invasion now going on by the officers comes an end. There is evidence in hands of the authorities implicating a number whose names are being withheld.
